

Infant July 2026

It's July and the long, hazy days of summer are here! My how time flies when you're having fun! This month, your babies will catch the All-American Spirit as they enjoy activities that will stimulate brain development and increase their rapidly emerging skills. During the first week of July, as other children in the center commemorate America's birthday with displays of patriotism, your infants will celebrate their own independence and individuality. They will work on repetition and animal sounds in Week 2. Fine motor skills such as hand-eye coordination will be the focus in Week 3. Your babies will be "flying high" in Week 4 as they work on those gross motor skills. Remember, working on all of these skills while they are infants, builds a solid foundation for achieving maximum growth and development!
